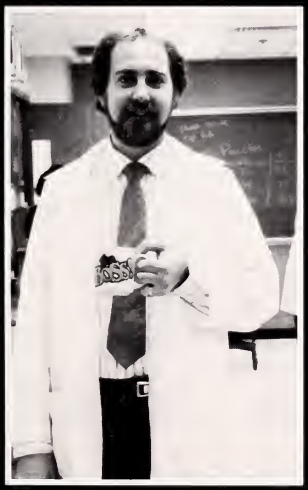
FACULTY



DEAN'S MESSAGE

A recent and highly successful movie, "Back to the Future", employed a time machine that allowed the hero to go back in time. If such a machine existed I wouldn't want to look back, rather I'd want to be sent forward in time, then to return with the rich knowledge of what the future holds in store for all of us. We've all used various predictors in an attempt to glimpse the future; crystal balls and astrology charts are used by some, while the reports generated by futurists represent the opposite, and at least, a semi-scientific approach. "Pharmacy in the 21st Century" was a report that used the latter approach, and has some exciting predictions about the role of pharmacists in the future. The most important factor about the future of our profession, regardless of all the prognostications, is the effort made by each person in our profession. The future is what you make it, not what the other person does . . . it's what you do. Don't take your contribution to pharmacy lightly, it is very important. When you read this book twenty years from now, be ready to say that you did influence the evolution of practice that exists in 2007.

Alkaloids

Sertürner's paper, in 1817, "Morphis, a New Salt-forming Substance, and Meconic Acid, as the Chief Constituents of Opium," opened a new era of discovery in organic plant chemistry. His isolation of the first alkaloid was soon followed by the isolation of narcotine by Robiquet and strychnine by Pelletier and Caventou. These basic compounds were at first called vegetable alkalies, but were later renamed alkaloids, meaning alkali-like. It is of special interest to note that many of the most important alkaloids were discovered by pharmacists.

Alkaloids, as the active principles of many plants, were

KAPPA PSI PHARMACEUTICAL FRATERNITY SIGMA CHAPTER

Kappa Psi Pharmaceutical Fraternity strives to combine the best of fellowship and service at the University of Maryland. The fraternity was commended twice by the Red Cross this year for its efforts during the blood drives at the school. Kappa Psi was there during open house and orientation helping guide tours and dispense information. Brother held positions in government, Rho Chi and the Pharm. D. program. A hilarious scavenger hunt through Baltimore was the climax of our fall pledge drive. The jokes told at last fall's "Roast of Lisa Browne" can't be printed on these pages, but everyone had a great time (right Lisa?). The brothers met regularly this spring for lunch expeditions and noon-time parties. The spring Dinner in Little Italy gave us a chance to say goodbye to our graduating seniors who will be moving on to successful careers in industry and private practice.
